

Project Management Institute

Vital and forward thinking – focused on the needs of project management professionals worldwide; that's the Project Management Institute (PMI®) of today. We've long been acknowledged as a pioneer in the field and now our membership represents a truly global community with more than 260,000 professionals, representing over 160 countries.

PMI® Specific Interest Groups

Project management is a broad discipline covering many areas of special interest. Specific industries and project categories pose unique challenges. Where do you go to find others who possess specialized knowledge and skills? Who understands the kinds of issues you are dealing with? PMI introduced Specific Interest Groups (SIGs) to create a forum for individuals and organizations that share common interests, industry, or project focus.

SIG activities include networking, establishing standards and practices within a focused area, developing technical papers, and working on special projects. You will find that there are many benefits associated with SIG membership including access to quarterly newsletters, a networking directory, seminars, webinars, informative web sites and publications.

Since SIG membership has no geographical boundaries, SIG members pay a nominal fee to support SIG activities and must be a member of PMI in good standing.

About Us

The DPC SIG and its membership is an organization that has been advocating the profession since 1996. To-date the DPC SIG comprises a little over 2200 PMI® members worldwide who work on projects involving design, procurement, or construction. Our members are professionals who want to be more effective at planning, organizing, controlling and leading project work.

Our Mission

The mission of the DPC SIG is to provide participants with the highest quality information, education, training, skills and opportunities to successfully identify, plan, manage, and participate in design, procurement and construction projects involving buildings and facilities in the residential, commercial and industrial sectors of the worldwide economy.

Future Projects

We are the lead PMI Component responsible for the idea of conducting an annual Project Management Collegiate Competition and are working with other SIGs to develop the Steering Committee;

We are exploring opportunities to collaborate with other organizations outside of PMI (e.g., Construction Management Association of America (CMAA) and the Asociación Española de Dirección Integrada de Proyecto (AEDIP)); and

We are evaluating the development of an Advanced PM Training Program focusing issues, tools, and processes unique to the construction industry.

Call for Volunteers
